

SPRINGFIELD

ArtSalon makes stop at STCC

The ArtSalon, a dynamic evening of engaging presentations by established and emerging artists in the Pioneer Valley, will be at the Amy H. Carberry Fine Arts Gallery at Springfield Technical Community College tomorrow.

The ArtSalon provides an opportunity for artists and designers of all media to present their work and ideas in a format called PechaKucha of 20 slides shown. Each slide is shown for 20 seconds. The public is invited to meet and join the artists, creators, critics, and collectors in a friendly, social gathering of conversations about the arts in the community.

Presenting artists include Jorge Costa, Kiayani Douglas, Marla Shelasky, Jessica Poser and Sandra Matthews, who are working artists and teachers in the Pioneer Valley. Photographs by Matthews are also on view at the Carberry Gallery through April 6.

"Freya in 2011-2018" by artist Sandra Matthews. Matthews will be one of the presenting artists when the ArtSalon makes a stop at Springfield Technical Community College tomorrow night.

The evening begins at 6:30 p.m. with mingling and light refreshments. Presentations start at 7 p.m. A brief Q&A period with the artists follows the presentations.

The evening is a sliding scale admission fee between $5 and $10. For more information, email valleyartsalon@gmail.com or go online to theartsalon.com.
